

José María Arraiza

Dr. José María Arraiza has spent the last two decades working on ethnicity and conflict matters both as a field practitioner and as a researcher. He participated in the early days of the UN administration of Kosovo (Mitrovica, 1999-2000), the transition process in East Timor (Bobonaro, 2001), the human rights activities of the OSCE Mission in Kosovo (2002-2008) and the diplomatic work of the OSCE High Commissioner on National Minorities in Central, Eastern and Southeastern Europe (The Hague, 2010-2012).

Currently he leads the Information, Counseling and Legal Assistance (ICLA) programme of the Norwegian Refugee Council in Myanmar. This includes facilitated access to civil documents through mobile teams in South East Myanmar as well as information and counseling on civil documents/citizenship issues and Housing, Land and Property rights (HLP).

Dr Arraiza holds a European Masters' Degree on Human Rights and Democratisation (E.MA), an L.L.M. on Peace Support Operations (NUI Galway) and a PhD in public law (Åbo Akademi University, Turku) which explores autonomy and language rights.

Carraiza.JoseM@2gedar.com